

Providence
College Galleries

pcgalleries.
providence.edu
401.865.2418

1 Cunningham
Square
Providence

Rhode Island
02918

For Immediate Release
02.10.2026

Felicia Megginson: Re-Framing Nature

March 4 – September 12, 2026
Reilly Gallery, Smith Center for the Arts

MEDIA CONTACT

Carol Stakenas
Director/Chief Curator
Providence College Galleries
pcgalleries@providence.edu

Related Event:

New date > Wednesday, March 18
5pm-7pm: Artist-led Tour & Reception

Felicia Megginson, "Transformation – Scrub 1," Sepia and selenium toned gelatin silver print, New Smyrna Beach, FL (2004).
Courtesy of the artist.

[Providence, Rhode Island] Providence College Galleries is pleased to announce Felicia Megginson: Re-Framing Nature, on view at Reilly Gallery from March 4 through September 12, 2026. It is the artist's first solo exhibition in Rhode Island. Re-Framing Nature transforms self-portraiture into a dynamic exploration of the artist's connection with the natural world. Due to the record-breaking snowstorm on February 23, the reception has been rescheduled to Wednesday, March 18. An artist-led tour with Megginson starts at 5pm.

Working with multi-exposure photography and shadow play, the artist embeds herself within living systems. The exhibition unfolds through a series of photographs created across different landscapes and locales. The artworks trace shifts in Megginson's encounters with the environment, from urban green spaces and botanic gardens to forests, deserts, and shorelines. Sites include Wave Hill Public Garden and Cultural Center (Riverdale, NY), Brooklyn Botanic Garden (Brooklyn, NY), Buttermilk Falls State Park (Ithaca, NY) and Blacklock Nature Sanctuary (Moose Lake, MN) as well as New Smyrna Beach, FL, Tepoztlán, Mexico and East Providence, among others. Her dreamlike compositions speak to enmeshment and entanglement as the edges of her body dissolve and converge with rocks, rippling water, and networks of roots and vines. She notes, "Place as a metaphor for self has been a constant focal point of my work."

Re-Framing Nature foregrounds the act of making as much as the resulting image. Megginson invites the visitor to consider how images are built, altered, and understood, and how the process itself shapes interpretation. As skin meets bark and shadow folds into light, her images embrace convergence, intricate textures, and poetic blur, revealing spatial dimensions that resist a visual order built on control.

The fluid geometries and shifting contours in Megginson's work give shape to a central question: What can we understand about ourselves through our interactions with the natural systems around us?

GENERAL INFORMATION

Providence College Galleries
–Reilly Gallery at
Smith Center For the Arts
Providence College
pcgalleries.providence.edu

Hours: Mon-Fri, 11am-5pm;
Sat 11am-3pm
when school is in session.

For more information, contact:
pcgalleries@providence.edu

Free and open to the public.

Providence
College Galleries

pcgalleries.
providence.edu
401.865.2418

1 Cunningham
Square
Providence

Rhode Island
02918

Felicia Megginson: Re-Framing Nature is organized by Carol Stakenas, Director & Chief Curator of Providence College Galleries. Funding for the exhibition is generously provided by Providence College's Division of Academic Affairs, with in-kind support provided by Providence College's Department of Art & Art History.

To plan your visit, or schedule a tour, go to: pcgalleries.providence.edu/visit/

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Felicia Megginson is a Providence-based artist whose creative practice explores themes of identity, place, and lived experiences. She holds an M.A. in Studio Art from New York University and has participated in numerous exhibitions, fellowships, and residencies. Her work was featured in Nine Moments for Now (2018) and Harlem Found Ways (2017) at the Alain Locke Gallery of African and African American Art at Harvard. She was also part of "Debtfair," Occupy Museums' contribution to the 2017 Whitney Biennial. She was selected to participate in the Bronx Museum of Art's Artist in the Marketplace program and received a Polaroid film grant. She has participated in residencies at the Atlantic Center for the Arts, New Smyrna, FL; Blacklock Nature Sanctuary, Moose Lake, MN; Center for Photography in Woodstock, NY; Constance Saltonstall Foundation, Ithaca, NY; and the Henry Street Settlement in New York City, among others. Her work has appeared in Bomb magazine, Here is New York: A Democracy of Photographs (2002), Studio magazine (The Studio Museum in Harlem), and TRANSITION: The Magazine of Africa and the Diaspora (Hutchins Center for African & African American Research, Harvard University). Megginson has served on the Board of Directors at AS220 and taught courses on visual culture and image-making at Lesley University in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

feliciamegginson.com

ABOUT PROVIDENCE COLLEGE GALLERIES

Providence College Galleries is committed to museum-quality presentations of the art and artists of our times. Operating in two galleries, online, and in public spaces across the college's campus and throughout Providence, we champion visual arts projects and initiatives that foster public engagement, lifelong learning in the arts, as well as cultural exchange at local, national, and international levels. Providence College Galleries ultimately strives to bring together creative practitioners, scholars, and audiences in ways that demonstrate how and why artists are vital forces in shaping contemporary global culture.

pcgalleries.providence.edu

# #